New City Finance Director Jennifer Anderson starts work

Jennifer Anderson started work this week as the City's new Finance Director, just in time to begin preliminary financial work to shape the outlines of the City's 2015 Budget.

"We're very pleased to have found for our Finance Director someone with Ms. Anderson's skills and experience," said City Manager Larry Bauman "But just as important as those skills are for us, we also see her as a good fit for our community and for our City organization."

Ms. Anderson has worked in executive level management positions in finance for the Minnesota cities of Waconia, Sartell and Big Lake since 1996 and then worked as a consultant to the State of Minnesota Small Business Development Center. She was also recently providing budget and management financial analysis services to the Municipal Building Commission for the City of Minneapolis and Hennepin County.

"Jennifer Anderson was selected after three very competitive rounds of recruitment for this position," said Bauman. "We were determined to find a candidate with the right mix, and we are glad to have found all of the qualities we sought in Ms. Anderson."

"I am excited to have joined the Snohomish community," said Anderson. "As time permits I look forward to meeting and serving residents and business owners along with becoming part of the Snohomish City team."

Ms. Anderson replaces Danny Weinberg, who retired late last year after nearly 7 years as the director for financial operations for the City of Snohomish.

Her position is responsible for budget and finance, utility billing, information services and City Hall reception.
